The commuter rail division of the Illinois Regional Transit Authority (RTA), the Chicago Metra system operates through the major Metropolitan area of the Chicagoland region, running on 11 different lines in and out of the city center to the surrounding suburbs.

Old and New working together

Despite having the newer MP36PHs, the Chicago Metra system continues to use a significant fleet of F40PH locomotives - these locos provide exclusive service to a number of the train lines in the Chicago suburban area, making them the de-facto face of Metra in these areas.

Both the Kato Metra F40PH and MP36PH share the similar directional head and taillights on the nose of the engine so that they can replicate the Push-Pull lighting patterns of the prototype models, whether working together or separately.

The North American Suburban Station Kit brings Metra to life on your layout!
